Market-leading joinery specialist draws on years of experience to provide a perfect balance of traditional and contemporary

HUX is a market-leading joinery specialist that creates bespoke cabinetry, kitchens and furniture for a wide range of design professionals and discerning private individuals.

The company offers a seamless concept to completion service, dedicated to designing and manufacturing individually tailored joinery pieces and kitchens of the highest quality, all delivered at a competitive price.

Based in West London, HUX's core business is working collaboratively with interior designers on both commercial and residential projects, turning design intent drawings into fully-realised shop drawings and exploring different styles, finishes and textures.

The core team includes a RIBA part III architect, BILD member, and specialist kitchen designer with 20 years' experience at Smallbone and Roundhouse. In essence, the team provides a perfect balance of traditional and contemporary. It is this combination of creative flair and manufacturing expertise that enables HUX to integrate the latest cutting-edge technologies and finishes into its furniture.

High street kitchen and joinery companies offer a degree of flexibility, but fundamentally they are working to a pre-determined palette of styles, materials and finishes. Every HUX commission is truly bespoke.

HUX's interior design clients really value being able to manage the quality and timelines of this critical aspect by working directly with a dedicated joinery provider, rather than relying on a main contractor subcontracting the work to an unknown third party.

HUX originated as an in-house joinery arm of a design and build company, so the team is hugely experienced in working alongside a main contractor. It still works closely with its main contractor sister company, so is able to provide other trades, or even incorporate the joinery package, into a main contractor service if required.

All of the HUX joinery is made in Britain, put together by its own team of expert cabinet-makers in a 4,000 square foot workshop on the outskirts of West London.

The company supplies joinery to London and the Home Counties, but also undertakes larger projects and bespoke furniture pieces for residential and commercial schemes throughout the UK and beyond.
